

Collaborative booths

Huddle

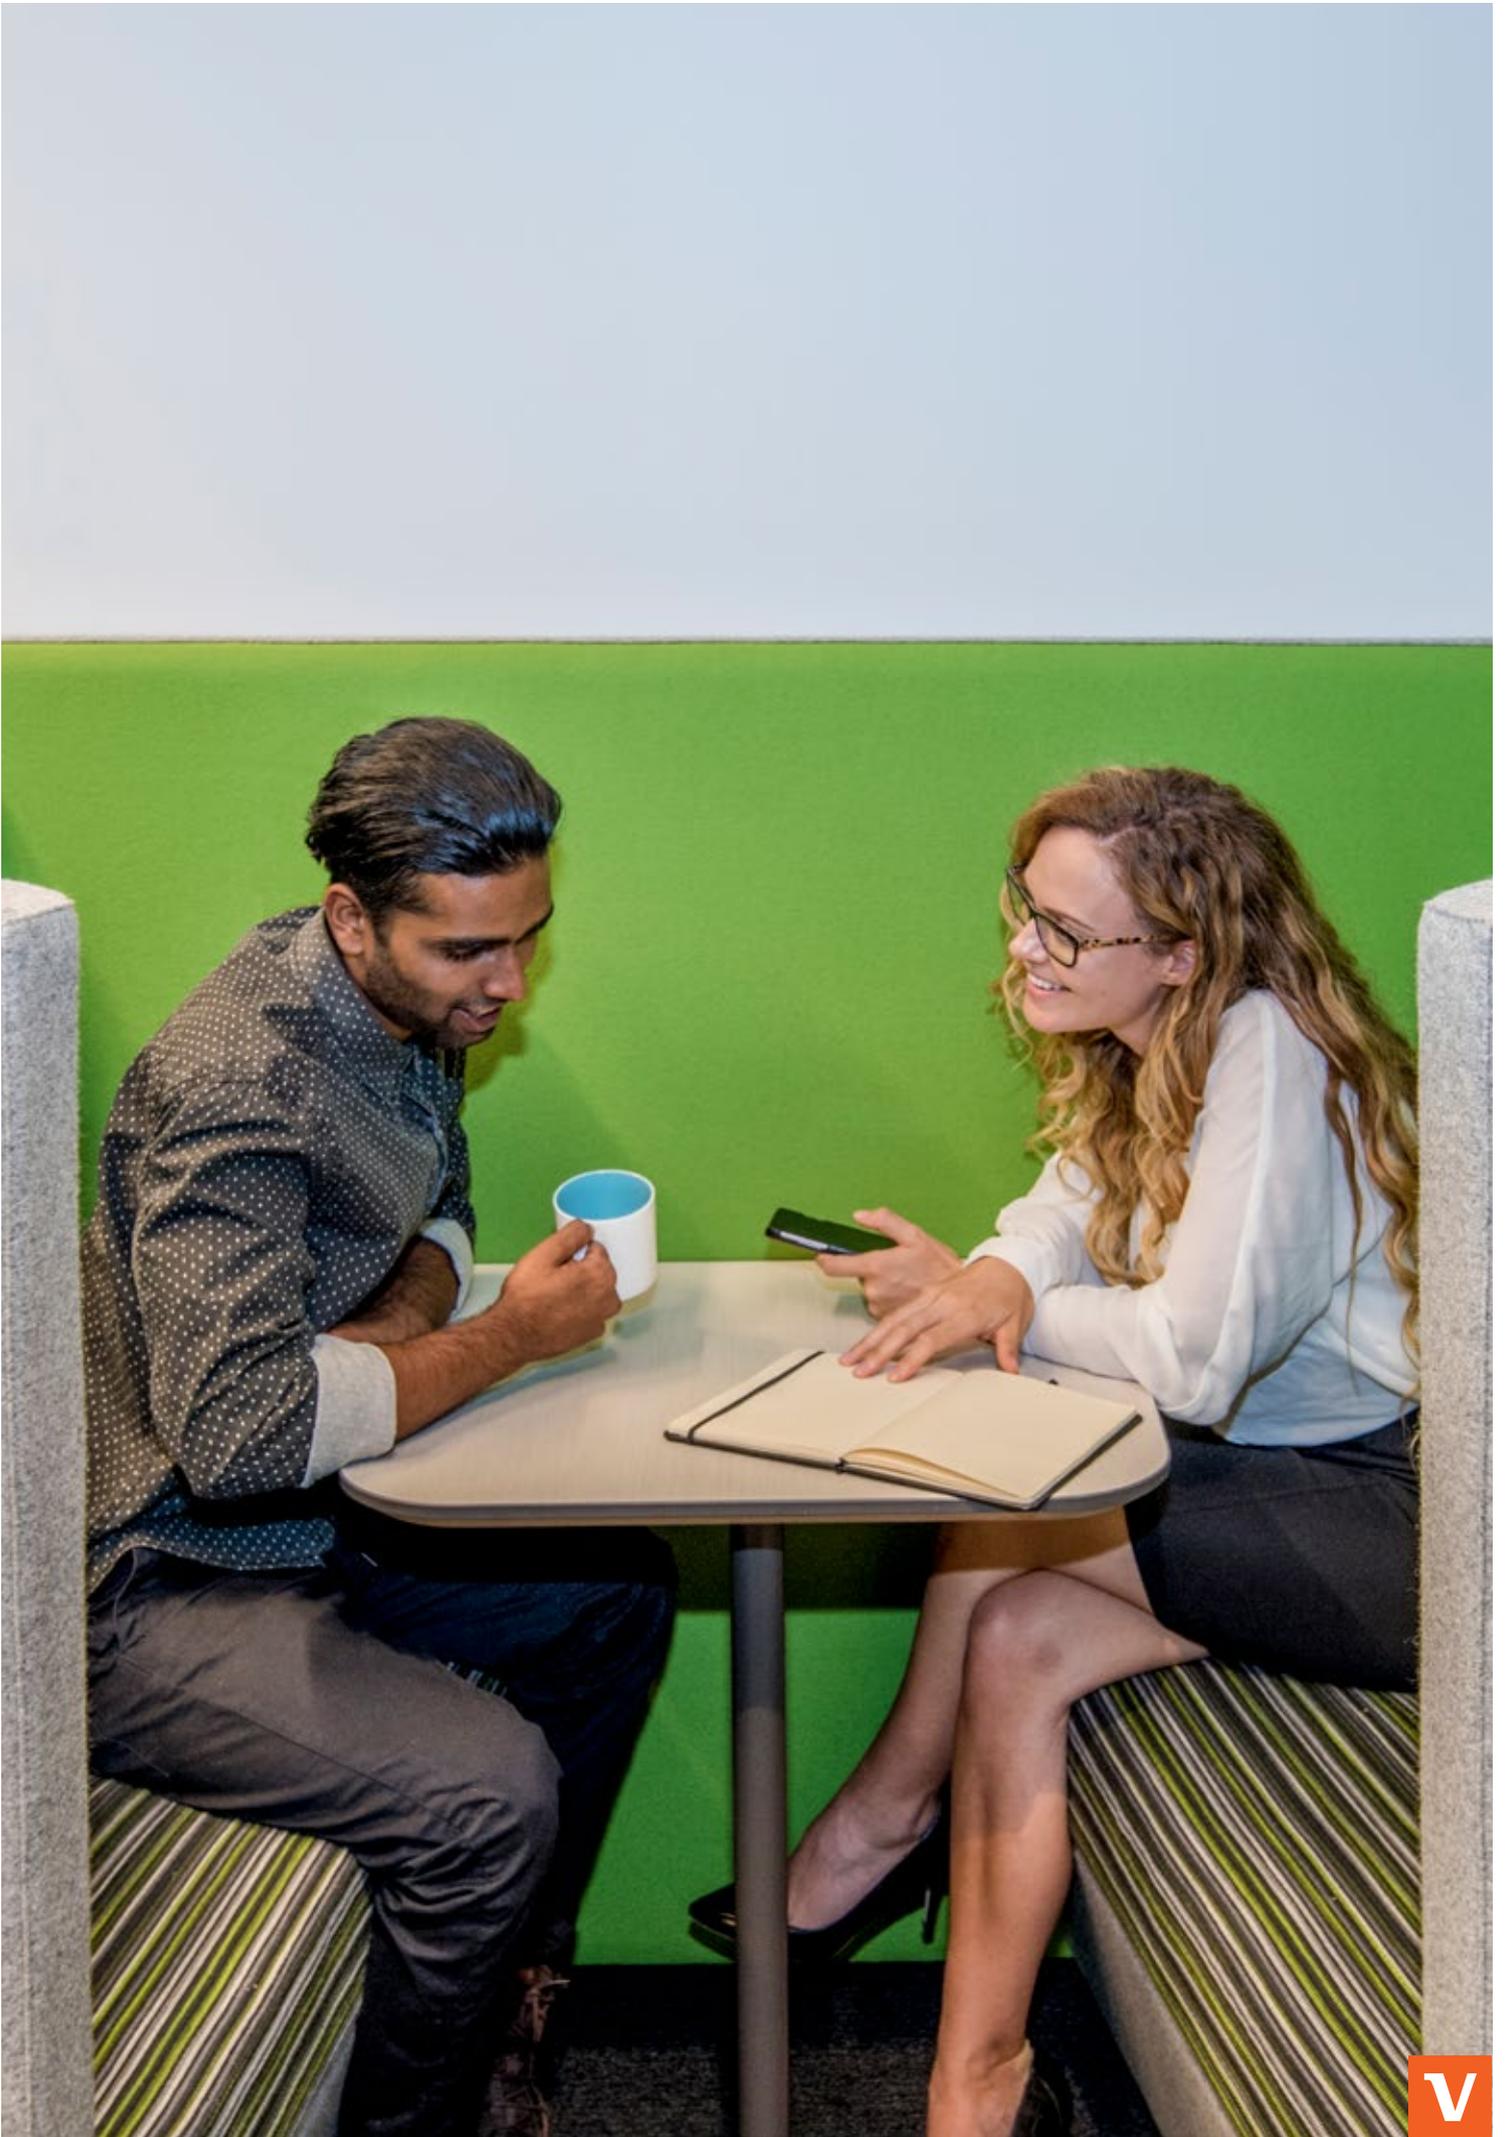

Most soft seating is designed for simply sitting – not for working.

Huddle gives you the best of both worlds. Create comfortable, versatile spaces where people can meet, relax or work quietly.

Collaborative booths

Huddle

Our versatile Huddle booths were created to meet the demand for collaborative spaces in open-plan offices. Totally freestanding, they can be placed virtually anywhere in your workplace and moved when you decide to change the layout. It's an incredibly cost-effective alternative to inflexible permanent meeting rooms.

One of the major failings of most soft seating solutions is that they're designed for simply sitting – not for working. Huddle is as much a workstation as a meeting room. The seats are easy to get in and out of, and the seat height, depth, lumbar support and foam density have all been carefully considered to help you work comfortably and ergonomically at the table.

Each booth is made up of soft walls and soft seating. Optional TV walls, tables and barleaners can be incorporated, along with whiteboards, power boxes and laptop tables. Because we live in a world of portable electronic devices, you can choose to have power, data, HDMI and USB all integrated into the booth. Power and data can either be fed from the floor or from the ceiling via cable umbilical. Fully integrated systems can be configured to include TV walls that allow you to collaborate on documents or connect with your colleagues offsite.

Huddle is a modular system so each booth is made up of elements chosen from a wide-ranging kit of parts. To make it easy, we've put together a series of standard booth configurations, each offering its own unique space and set of tools. If you need something different, we can customise the size and shape to suit your space. Because each booth is designed and manufactured in New Zealand, creating custom solutions is easy. All that's left to do then is choose a colour and fabric to suit your interior style.
